

a note from the seller..

I purchased this condo as an investment in my future, but it quickly became so much more than that. It was my first major purchase after a big life change, and from the beginning, this community gave me exactly what I needed—quiet, safety, greenery, and a true sense of comfort. With mature trees, thoughtful landscaping, and neighbors who have lived here for decades, it never felt like an apartment complex; it felt like home. A place where people look out for one another and don't want to leave.

Inside the home, I've completely reimagined the space since purchasing it in 2019. Everything from the front door in has been replaced or rebuilt to create a more functional, modern layout. The kitchen was taken down to the studs and rebuilt. I also made thoughtful changes like relocating the washer and dryer for better flow and reinforcing the living room wall to comfortably mount a television.

What I love most about this location is how central it feels to everything. I'm minutes from major freeways, the Metro line, the Galleria, incredible dining in the Mahatma Gandhi District and nearby Asian food hubs, and easy access to parks and trails that connect all the way to George Bush Park. Whether enjoying the pool and barbecue gazebo, going for a run, or heading out to a concert or the theater, this home has supported my lifestyle beautifully. My hope is that the next owner feels the same sense of peace, pride, and belonging here that I've felt every day.
