

a note from the seller..

When we first moved to Houston, we were guided by friends who told us, "You have to check out Sienna." They were right. From the moment we walked through the model home of what would become 1806 Sienna Grove Drive, we knew it was the one. The bright, open layout, the modern finishes, and the peaceful location near parks and schools made it feel like home right away.

Over the years, we've built beautiful memories here—from cozy movie nights in the upstairs cinema room to gathering around the fire pit with friends in the backyard. Our kids loved having their own spaces—especially our teenager who enjoyed the privacy of the upstairs suite—and we loved the peace of mind that came with the home's safety and low-maintenance new construction. We also added thoughtful upgrades, like surround sound, a projection screen, and even an electric car charger, to make daily living even more convenient and fun.

Sienna isn't just a neighborhood—it's a community. Halloween is one of our favorite times of year, when the whole area comes alive with decorations, friendly faces, and more candy than we can count. Our children found fast friends here, and we always felt a strong sense of connection with our neighbors. Whether it was a scooter ride to school, a swim at one of the many pools, or attending a community festival, this has been a place where our family has truly thrived.

As we prepare to move back to Arizona, we do so with full hearts and a deep appreciation for all that this home and community have given us. We hope it brings you as much joy, laughter, and comfort as it has brought us.

The Mendelsohn's

