

a note from the seller..

When I first walked through the doors of this home, I knew it was the one. The location was perfect, and the price made it possible, but what I couldn't have known then was just how much life this house would hold.

This was the first home I ever got to truly make my own. Every fixture I updated, every room I painted, every improvement I made was done with love and intention. I wanted it to reflect care, and I believe it does.

As a nurse of 26 years, location has always meant everything to me. Being close to the medical center wasn't just a convenience, it was a calling. And coming home to this peaceful, family-filled neighborhood after long shifts was a gift I never took for granted. The neighbors here are genuinely good people. The kind who look out for each other. That's not something you can put a price on.

I've watched families grow up on these streets. I've seen children ride bikes through the community paths, splash in the pool on summer afternoons, and play in the park just down the road. This neighborhood has a heartbeat, and it's a warm one.

My hope is that whoever walks through these doors next feels what I felt, the comfort, the peace, and the quiet joy of coming home. I'm moving on to a new chapter, but I leave this place with a full heart, knowing the best memories were made right here.

This home is ready for you. I hope you love it as much as I have.
