Security deposits are determined based on the results of the screening process and may vary depending on the applicant's qualifications. Any required security deposit will comply with all applicable federal, state, and local laws, including limitations, if any, under the Texas Property Code.

Tenants are responsible for maintaining any insurance required by the lease agreement. Tenants are also responsible for any damages to the property that exceed ordinary wear and tear as defined by Texas Property Code §92.104.

Not all fees listed may apply to every property or applicant, including properties participating in affordable or subsidized housing programs. Some fees and services may be subject to applicable state or local taxes.

This document is a general informational summary and does not replace, amend, or modify the terms of the lease agreement or rental application. Specific fees, deposits, and requirements are identified in the executed lease and/or application documents, which are available for review prior to submitting an application.

Tenants may be responsible for establishing and maintaining required utility services (such as electricity, water, gas, internet, and trash services), when specified in the lease agreement.

Additional fees may be charged in accordance with the signed lease and Texas Property Code for certain events, services, or lease violations.
