

What We Love About Our Home

We've lived in this home for 16 years, and it's been a really special place for our family. It's not just the house—it's the neighborhood, and all the little things that made day-to-day life feel easy and good.

Here are a few of the things we've loved most:

1. The neighborhood feels like a community: People are out walking, you get to know your neighbors, and things like the holiday progressive dinner bring everyone together in a really genuine way.
2. Living at the end of the cul-de-sac: It's quiet, low-traffic, and has always felt really safe. Our daughter enjoyed her cozy coupe on the driveway, learned to ride her bike around the cul-de-sac and even practiced driving around the circle too!
3. The extra space between homes: You don't feel on top of your neighbors, and while they're all very kind, it's nice to have some elbow room!
4. The game room: This has been the hangout spot over the years—lots of playdates, lots of friends, lots of laughs (and lots of pizza!).
5. The pool in the summer: One of the best parts is that it gets shade in the afternoon (around 2-3 p.m.), which makes a big difference in the Texas heat.
6. Schools are so close: We enjoyed biking to both David Elementary and Collins Intermediate (because who wants to deal with those long car rider lines!). And, when biking isn't a good option, the bus for Collins (and for Knox Junior High) currently stops at Scarlet Sage & Shadowpoint—super convenient and easy.
7. The natural light: There's just a lot of it. The house always feels bright and open during the day.
8. A neighborhood that gets you outside: It's easy to push strollers on the pathways, walk your dog on the green spaces and go for a run – and feel really safe while doing it.
9. Fun neighborhood traditions: From holiday gatherings to things like bowling outings, there's always been something that brings people together.
10. It's been a really good home: So many memories here—just everyday life, friends, family, all of it. It's the kind of place that feels good the minute you walk in.

One last thing

We've truly loved living here. It's been a home in every sense of the word, and we hope whoever comes next feels that too.
