

a note from the seller...

We have lived a full and happy life in this home, and it is not easy to say goodbye. When we first found this house, it was the little things that drew us in. The proximity to Foster Elementary, the quiet cul-de-sac, the way the neighborhood felt like a place where kids could actually grow up. And they did. Our daughters had sleepovers in the party room, birthday parties that spilled out into the yard, and a childhood full of the kind of memories that only happen when a home truly fits a family.

That party room became the heart of the house. Six skylights flooding the space with natural light, laughter echoing off the walls. It was worth every bit of the addition we built for it.

Over the years we took care of this home the way you take care of something you love. Not because we had to, but because we wanted it to last. The result is a house that runs efficiently, stays comfortable, and has very little left to worry about.

The neighborhood itself is something we will deeply miss. A wooded trail half a block away that we walked nearly every day with our dog. A duck pond, tennis and pickleball courts, soccer fields, a boat launch, and horse stables all within the community. And a back way out through Forest Cove that keeps you off Kingwood Drive entirely. A small thing that makes every single day a little easier.

We are moving to be closer to family and the Texas Medical Center, and while that is the right decision, leaving this home is bittersweet. We hope whoever comes next fills it with just as much joy as we did.
