

a note from the seller...

This home is more than a property to me. It is where I grew up. I remember playing in the front yard, exploring the little attic room upstairs, and discovering every hidden corner this house had to offer, including the cozy room tucked underneath the stairs. These are the kinds of spaces that spark a child's imagination, and this house had them in abundance.

Our family chose this home for a reason. The solid brick construction, the high ceilings, the double-pane windows, and the raised foundation gave us a sense of security and quality that is hard to come by. The pool and tennis court right across the street meant there was always somewhere to go and something to do, and the neighborhood always felt safe and welcoming enough to enjoy it all freely.

Years later, as a registered dietitian working at the Texas Medical Center, I came to appreciate something else about this location. It is genuinely well connected. A straight shot to the Medical Center, easy access to some of the city's best and most diverse dining, and a quiet street to come home to at the end of a long day.

I am selling because my journey is taking me closer to the city, but I do so knowing this home was built and cared for with love. The bones are exceptional, the neighborhood is as warm as ever, and whoever calls it home next will be very lucky indeed.
